

IPA Policy Manual

Chapter 5 – Association Operations

5.2 Website Guidelines

The members section of the IPA website is reserved for the use and benefit of IPA members only. Member postings, blogs and comments on the IPA website are the opinions, thoughts and suggestions of the individual who placed the submission. The IPA does not necessarily guarantee, support or endorse messages or information posted on the website by individual member. Website postings are not a substitute for professional legal advice and should not be relied on without consulting legal counsel.

Failure to strictly follow the rules of the website and/or failure to follow national, State or local laws may result in immediate loss of access to the members section of the IPA website without notice. The IPA, through the Executive Director, reserves the right to deny access to the members section of the IPA website for any violation of these guidelines or the website Rules and Procedures.
